MESSAGES: AP - (CONS): "The Sultan appears to be disabled judging from a recent speech. After a recent speech in which the Sultan rambled on about the English imperialist and the French plot to bring the great Ottoman Empire to its knees, the Sultan was seen being placed in a wheelchair and being pushed away by a strange bearded man who showed a remarkable resemblance to Scoops Burke. This may explain the recent series of strange messages coming out of Constantinople.

MESSAGES: "The minister of Defense was quoted in the Royal Berliner as saying that the highly touted Russo-Turkish alliance was 'crumbling in the world's eye', and that 'the Sultan is sacking his diplomatic corps for embarrassing him internationally'".

(London Times): News Flash - Sultan of Turkey blasted in Parliament! "He doesn't practice what he preaches" quoth the King. "Silence is telling", reads the headline.

Also! National Mandate issued! Iberia target of Imperial attention, more at 11:00!

(Ankara) - The Sultan issued a statement today that condemns the military action taken against the sovereign people of Russia. In the Sultan's own words, "The word of an Englishman is no more sincere than a camel's breath is pleasant. The position of a German shifts more that desert sand in a windstorm. I remind the German and the Englishman of these facts."

Rules Additions, Deletions, Clarifications and Modifications:

1)If a character with a mistress fights a duel over another mistress, it is automatically considered an indiscretion.

2)Changing a former rule, titles will be bestowed and status points gained in the 1st month of the season following the event which caused them to be considered for that title. Therefore, if you wish to block someone's title you must be vigilant to find potential title worthy events or state that you will always use influence against or for a particular person or persons.

3)In dueling, a close routine will close any distance regardless of the number of JB routines which have been performed by either side, unless the close and jump back routines are performed simultaneously.

Le Gossipe Parisienne

PARIS rocked to the clash of swords this season. It all began when M. Dubois arrived at the appointed time to meet M. Van Rijn, only to be met by M. Jardin who boldly exclaimed "Why if it isn't the coward Dubois, himself! Thou poxy whorson bastard! Thy slanderous lies have besmirched the honor of our regimental commander, the regiment and me! I demand satisfaction immediately or art thou man enough to rephrase thy slanders in steel?" Dubois drew his sword exclaiming, "If I must deal with lackeys, so be it.", and promptly cut Jardin down to size. As soon as M. Jardin surrendered, M. Van Rijn stepped from the woods and declared that he was ready for his meeting with Dubois. Dubois grimaced, sighed and came en garde. Despite being badly wounded in his previous duel, he was able to inflict considerable damage before he was forced to surrender. Meanwhile, M. deSod swept Giselle off her feet with his dashing victory over M. Dolokhov, only to dump her the following month while winning the heart of Roxanne (with beaucoup crowns) from M. Van Rijn, who had defeated him only a week earlier in a duel over the same mistress. It is reported that M. Van Rijn asked M. deSod what rules they should observe and when M. deSod replied that there are no rules in a duel, M. Van Rijn delivered a wicked kick, disabling the poor de Sod and abating his desire for female companionship that week. In two other encounters, M. Van Rijn and M. deLampalle each won once against the other, but both survived to fight again another day.

A highlight of the season was M. de Sod's hunting party at which M. Dolokhov barely escaped injury when he leaped from the back of his horse, knife in teeth after a large stag which unfortunately proved too fast for him and the host proved likewise fortunate as the tusks of a large boar narrowly missed him as he and several companions hunted the beast afoot. As it turned out, about the only quarry that did not elude the eager hunters were peasants.

Several government appointments changed hands this season as M. Van Rijn became first, Minister without Portfolio, then, Minister of War in successive months (gaining a new title each time), and M. de Sod became Chancellor of the Exchequer despite adverse influence. M. Dolokhov was not so fortunate, and failed to become commissioner of public safety for the second year in a row.

Though the army had another mediocre season, some individuals proved very brave. Among them, the newly promoted Brigadier General Lafayette, and Lt. Colonel Dubois, who received the Croix de Guerre for wounds received in battle.

Mardi Gras will be held in the 2nd week of February, this season.

In other news, it was reported that Reynold Matusse cleared his name this season, although the reports of his fighting style seem too unusual to report without confirmation.

M. Terrault threw a small private party at which he apparently debauched himself and M. Flambeau has collected so many Italian ladies undergarments while on the front, that one wonders if he intends to use them for his personal wardrobe.

Winter 1613 Actions must be received by March 23, 1983, at THE KING'S RESIDENCE, 206 School Street, Fairfield, Ct., 06460.

NOTES FROM THE JOURNAL OF THE ROYAL ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY - Edited by LORD HARRISON BURKE, Winter, 1826.

- IN EUROPE

Refusing a free ticket to PORT ELIZABETH, MADemoisELLE ROXY LARUE finds that Paris police officials begin a crack-down on her street operations to raise money for an expedition to Africa. But business is reasonably good anyway and she raises $300 this turn.

Alfred H. McGuffin has been hired by the Church of the Water of Life to investigate the strange coincidence that indicates that mountains have been falling on missionaries of the faith. Mr. McGuffin, a journalist, intends to outfit a heavily armed expedition. Although Mr. McGuffin has been very tight-lipped about the circumstances of his hiring, it is rumored that foul play is suspected in the deaths of his predecessors. McGuffin, himself deathly afraid of guns, plans to sail for Kilwa to keep his actual destination a secret. Will he investigate the fate of McMurdo or McBuns? Or, will he set off on his own? As his ship left the quay at Fortsmouth, a small victrola was heard playing the funeral march of the marionettes.

- IN AFRICA:

Professor O'FORAN, seemingly following Or. Hypo Guy Cemia, heads up the White (hexes 22->47->73), but in hex 73 he turns due west, in direction 5 into hex 73(?), which is more desert. Overjoyed by the lovely warm feeling the desert gives him, the professor is reported to have dived off his camel and attempted to swim in the sand. Finding no oases in this hex, the professor continues west across the desert.

Doctor Hypo Guy Cemia leaves Khartoum and heads in direction 4 following the White Nile, hexes 22->47->77 ending in hex 98, which the good doctor discovers is a desert hex. He discovers that the hex contains no oasis and no natives. His hunters obtain no rations this turn. The good doctor is upset to discover that 20 rations, which he bought in Khartoum, are inedible and must be discarded. He is impressed by his bearer, Byaswen, and his ability to lead and organize the three camels assigned to him. The good doctor is almost ready to give him full charge of the bon-bons, if he continues the good work.

ORTE'GO DE DAGO, rested and relaxed from the study of the Bassanga, decides to outfit his expedition and head overland to hex 259, where he believes he would find the extension of the Ogove river. Dago finally manages to re-outfit his expedition by wheeling and dealing in a series of trades, in which he gives up his extra musket to the chief of the Bassanga tribe. He obtains 80 rations, a new canoe, and 10 bearers, and heads overland to hex 259. Getting into hex 259 this turn, Dago discovers it is a mountain hex, with a river, which he believes to be the Ogove, heading in direction 1. Inspired by the water cascading over a 64 ft. cataract, and awed by the 22,500 ft. mountain peaks which surround him, Dago decides to go on up the river. There will be no heading for home for this intrepid explorer. He and his hunters each acquire 2 rations apiece when hunting in the vedlt.

The Right Reverend TWOMBLY offers the chief of the Go-Na tribe 18 gifts to gain permission to trade and, most importantly, preach to the natives on the value of tarot cards. The chief gives Twombly permission to preach, and preach he does, but the native seem not to be impressed and ignore him. He does gain 1 victory point for his efforts. The reverend gets ready to move on west by buying 36 rations for nine gifts. He also trades his musket to the chief for 3 gifts. Twombly dismisses one bearer and gets ready to follow the stars West. Noting that the river source which he discovered in this hex flows in the general direction of Khartoum, he declares this to be the source of the Nile, but the scientific community will not recognize this claim without further proof.

SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENT FOR THE JOURNAL:

Explorer looking for a syndicate to sponsor him. Louisiana Smith, noted professor of archaeology and explorer is seeking some group of investors to sponsor his search for lost civilizations in Africa. Professor Smith claims that the African continent should have a least one lost civilization hiding in it! He is willing to explore Africa by himself, if necessary, and he is willing to lead a modest expedition for passage to Africa.

Players are reminded to submit their next move by MARCH 23, 1983, to THE ROYAL ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY, PO BOX 2004, DARIEN, CT., 06820.
